Picture 1: The clinic design of the Houston Area Safety Council (HASC) gets its distinctive face from the semicircular main entrance with a roof parapet made of stainless steel by GKD.

Picture 2: GKD-USA used a new etching technique for the design of the 100 square meter roof parapet, which is made from semi-transparent Omega 1510 stainless steel mesh.

Picture 3: At night, spotlights lend the applied motifs by GKD the appearance of a shadow theater using targeted light accents.

WORLD WIDE WEAVE

Picture 4: Using a special etching process developed in-house, GKD created a silhouette-like panoramic view on the balustrade.

Picture 5: The silhouette-like panoramic view reflects the dynamic economic region and the everyday working life of the people that live in it.

Picture 6-7: Through etching, the complexity of the motif had to be embedded in multiple levels to lend the images the desired spatial depth.
